There was a time when I had no point of reference, but being clean and believing to be working an honest program, I’m aware of certain truths about myself. I’m sure most people feel the same way is that I don’t want to be used, hurt, disrespected or misled.

Knowing these truths then I must also give these to others in my daily affairs. I have made mistakes and have learned along the way. I know what I need in a relationship, I also know that trying to get what I want from a woman who is not aware of her recovery or her personal growth is wrong, even more its using. We tend to think of that work in terms of drugs. But using is using no matter what the High is. I don’t think most people from on the learning of ones lessons. We all look, we all desire, we all want what we want. I know right away that if I don’t have feelings for a woman I have no business trying to get with her. I have been single a long time because I want a full and loving relationship, and going from one relationship to another reduces the value of the woman that I invite into my life. I have lots of female friends that I cherish; I wouldn’t want to smash those friendships by using them. And I have destroyed relationships.

It’s a terrible thing to do that haunts us and them. I have tried to make my amends to those I’ve harmed and make my amends to myself. The 13th step is reckless disregard for another human being’s feelings and wellbeing. The sad truth is that men using woman, and woman using men is as old as humans. The difference here in N.A., is we can talk about it openly and educate each other. So ladies make those men wait because if they really love you they will. Don’t be seduced it might feel good now but like the drugs you WILL regret it later. Real love has nothing to do with sex. If you’re new to N.A. you will have a full range of emotions. Being loved after a long period of being disliked feels good, but being used and discarded will hurt like hell, and using drugs is how we medicate the pain.

As you can see this is a dangerous and deadly issue. We are all trying to get better but we come from a ruthless lifestyle that kills people. This disease deserves the utmost respect.
